

Vega Hi-Voice Trumpets

1940 - 1941

The Hi-Voice trumpet is the rarest of all Vega models with only one example found from 1940 and one ad from 1941. This was a Power model with a unique ten-sided bell flair.

Hi-Voice model #40143 from 1940 (auction photos).

February 1941 Down Beat magazine ad.

THE CASE OF THE MISSING HIGH "C"

There are probably a good many times when you'd like to put Sherlock Holmes on the trail of your high C—in fact your entire upper register! What happens to it? It doesn't take a Sherlock to find that out. Nine times out of ten it's because you and your horn are fighting each other from the moment you get on the stand until the boss finally says, "Okay boys—pack up." Now, if Holmes were a trumpet man, he'd set you straight in a hurry.

He would advise you to try the new VEGA "Hi-Voice" Model Trumpet, with the sensational Vega-Coustic Fluted Flare Bell. "Hi-Voice is right," he'd say. "Play that baby and your high register worries will fade into thin air. It's the most powerful, easiest blowing and most flexible trumpet that ever thrilled a brass man!"

Ask your dealer to show you the new VEGA "Hi-Voice" today. And write direct for free literature.

VEGA

165-T Columbus Ave. Boston, Mass.